

Final Exam (Part 1)

Question 5

The Reorganization Act of 1973 created:

- A. the Office of the State Auditor.
- B. the Public Examiner's Office.
- C. mass confusion amongst the electorate.
- D. both A & B above.

B. Incorrect:

In the Reorganization Act of 1973, the State Legislature, in their infinite wisdom, split the Public Examiner's Office in half.

A perfectly functioning office called the Public Examiner's Office had its oversight of local governments given to the Office of the State Auditor. The oversight of the Executive Branch remained with the Public Examiner's Office which was renamed the Office of the Legislative Auditor.
